

Typical of the conquerors of Eniwetok Atoll, these Marines, begrimed and weary from two days and nights of fighting, pause for food and drink before the six-hour fight that swept Engebi Island from the Japs.

Typical of the conquerors of Eniwetok Atoll, these Marines, begrimed and weary from two days and nights of fighting, pause for food and drink before the six-hour fight that swept Engebi Island from the Japs