

Crew stands on foredeck of boat at #65 Long Beach
STATION NO.6, LONG BEACH NO.65

The career of the CG 64014-F began in October of 1942. Having no definite mooring, she was shuttled about the harbor from place to place. Inasmuch as the Fire Division was created with speed, the crew had to find quarters to satisfy their own desires. In a short time berth 65 became the home of fireboat 4. It was here that the talents of the crew, other than fire-fighting were brought to light. Constructing a fire station was their motive; in a short time a modern and up-to-date place they had. Quarters and Galley were set up, watch shack and recreation hall built, hose tower erected and a great slab of concrete covered the terra firma along with many minor improvements complete to a Ship's Store. Along with this came the job of fighting fires, breaking up gas spills, pumping out boats and numerous other activities. The tanker fire and United Concrete warehouse were major along with many minor fires. Gas spills were frequent and dangerous due to surrounding conditions. In closing this brief history, on behalf of the crew and our fine commanding officers, we believe it a job well done.

CREW OF STATION NO.6

Hadley	Bever	Woodyard	Herbert	Hannah	Baker	Hansen
Van Horne	Goodrich	Felber	Klepper	Hornaday	Dieball	Whitten
Saunders	Parshall	Boyer	Maul	Sinclair	Henry
Ross	Stammer	Rodgers	Eisner	Johnson	Snyder

After chow comes horseshoes

Dinnertime at Station #6

