

for the Big Second Phase in Antarctica:

MUSCLES of the air arm: giant USAF C-124 Globemaster (left) capable of toting thousands of pounds of cargo in its huge belly. Right, B-57D Skyraider, a Navy workhorse and veteran of the first phase of Operation Deep Freeze.

FAITHFUL performers: the B-47D Stratojet (left) and the P-3 Neptune (right) got dog-tired but stayed in harness until the job was done. Brand-new P-3's (jet-prop) were big stars even though harassed by ski troubles.

FLEET little pocket editions: Navy Otter emerges sans wings from nose of C-124 (left). Pontooned helicopter, just one of many hedge-hoppers, attached to ships, camps, trail party, and what have you; versatile's the word.
