

THIRD PLATOON

John B. Allison -- The oft-times befuddled first squad leader has been known to lose track of his men. "I have to count them, Sir." He likes cycling...around the drill field...photographing nature and counts himself a member of the Hopley Yeaton Fan Club. A native of Oakmont, Pa., John has a B. S. in Physics from Geneva College, Beaver Fall, Pa. "Beaver Falls"???

Robert L. Basom, III -- Robert Lee 3's a compact bundle of energy. He's a swimming and skiing fan with a tendency to doze off after a few drinks. He spends time in the gym, got hit twice in one day for sleeping and has a ready smile. He's from Seattle, Washington, and majored in Finance and Banking at Seattle University.

Robert A. Bier, Jr. -- From Silver Springs, Maryland, Bob enjoys skiing, sailing, scuba diving and sleeping during study hours. He was a member of the Honor Platoon and was chosen as our Platoon Petty Officer. He appears quiet, but we've seen him at his best, i.e., full of laughs, puns, and a helpful suggestion when you're in need. He studied Geology and will become a seagoing rockhound.

Lance M. Brevold -- Both Hibbing, Minn. and Cleveland, Ohio have been the home of Lance. He went to the University of Minnesota and is an impassioned numismatist. (We hope he doesn't get caught at it.) His major was Industrial Psychology. A Platoon Petty Officer, he once forgot his tie to morning formation. He was among the ranks of the Honor Platoon.

Richard J. Burke -- Richard is a regular who has been stationed in New York, Alaska, and Texas. He is from Long Island, N. Y., where he attended Long Island University. Rich was a gunner's mate, but you'd never know it from his gunnery marks. He appears quiet, but we know better.

Armand L. Chapeau -- Toby comes to us from Atlanta, Georgia. As official Hopley Yeaton Cadence Counter, he maintained an enviable record by keeping the 3rd Platoon out of step constantly. However, when selected Platoon Commander, he became their moral guide and spiritual father. By some strange twist of fate, he brought us in first. The only OCOOD to miss colors, Toby's interests are tennis, swimming, and classical music. (Who are you kidding???)
