

MORE THIRD PLATOON

Donald J. Horvath -- If you ever wanted to know what was wrong with Camp Yorktown, you could ask Horvath. He was notorious as a section leader and has a passion for James E. Pepper. After graduating from the University of Wisconsin, he came here.

Earl R. Jacobus -- "Baby Huey" -- Earl, from Orange, New Jersey, went to Susquehanna University and then took his M. A. at the University of Pittsburgh. A prodigious writer of letters, or a writer of prodigious letters (it's a toss up) describes Earl best. If he'd spent as much time studying as he did writing, his average would certainly be prodigious. Yet, with most of his free time thus occupied, Earl found space to help shape up the 3rd Platoon as Commander for the 2nd month, and at the same time fit in some good times in Washington.

Thomas Johnston -- Tom attended the Catholic University of America where he majored in Economics. He can be characterized by his quick hands, especially in the Chow Hall. Yet, even though his locker is a veritable larder, Tom seems to have no trouble retaining a physique which makes him a terror on the basketball court, he cuts people. His room is always a center of attraction at all times. To get in you have to fight your way through the line waiting to read his Wall St. Journal, or people just there because they know the room will be the last one to be cleaned up. Tom is a hard worker who always seems to have a good word for everyone.

John A. Keyser -- He was a member of the wrestling team at the University of North Carolina which comes in handy on liberty. A talented writer with a sharp tongue, he is "Always Ready" to join in Hopley's Adventures. A real football nut, John spent most of his time in front of the tube.

Carl G. Larsen -- Carl came to the Coast Guard from Lehigh University where he majored in Finance and Accounting. He is perhaps an example of what OCS can do to a man - shiny shoes and shiny floors. But what about those tickets received on his first liberty and, above all, what about that first trip on the Cuyahoga - Ulp???

Grant R. Logan -- Grant went to the University of Arizona where he majored in Art. He will tell you that being the last man in the last squad in the last platoon does have a certain distinction. As a matter of fact, Grant is mainly characterized by an optimistic attitude developed here at Yorktown. If we could only find out why his roommate keeps that straight jacket in his security drawer!
