

MORE THIRD PLATOON

Joseph J. McClelland, Jr. -- Born, raised, and we don't know what in Chevy Chase, Maryland, "MAC" is a water bug. He spends time scuba diving, crewing and straightening out the company as Commander for the Second term. Biology took his fancy at Tufts University, but now it's going to be marine biology on an icebreaker...his choice. We hope that the tour will not effect his vocal chords adversely.

Thomas W. Miller -- Some called him the Ape Man. Some called him Tarzan. This import from Canada attended Alma College in Michigan where he majored in History and Weightlifting. After he lost his roommate, he got kind of lonely, but you could always find him in rooms 217, 212, 215, 214 or the gym (rarely studying). He excelled on the USCG basketball team and was company calisthenics leader.

Frederic A. Ornellas -- Well known as the 3rd Platoon Morale Officer, Fred majored in Physics at California State Polytechnic at San Luis Obispo. He managed to fix a few radios in 94 being interested primarily in electronics (he unfixed a few things, too.) Fred also has a tremendous voice, but it saved him money; he didn't phone home in California, he yelled home. It was just a coincidence that he was in Echo Section.

Paul E. Pelletier -- The Indian of the 3rd Platoon, Paul is proud of his Massachusetts heritage. His quiet subtle humor is liable to explode in your face. He developed the XHO 1222 heavy bomber, once kept his waste can inverted throughout an inspection, and amazed the TDO's with his security drawer full of cookies. His announcements as OCOOD were the greatest, something he probably learned at Providence College.

Robert L. Pritchard -- While attending Wilkes College somewhere in Pennsylvania, Bob became a "Graduate Math Major". As Chief Photographer of the Yeaton gang, he managed to get a few good shots, especially of the Halloween Party. His main interests are ice skating, swimming and going home to Trucks-ville.

Paul Schofield -- Mr. Demo hails from Dubuque, Iowa where he cut classes at the University of Iowa. He made the Hopley Yeaton T-shirt famous when he wore it leading morning cal. He keeps an interesting library and people often call up from New York and ask him to turn his radio down. The bear has also been known to squeak through an exam and lead a Hopley Yeaton adventure or two.
