

LT. RALPH W. LAWRENCE

You could easily recognize him by his salty hat which was symbolic of his knowledge of good seamanship. Mr. Lawrence is extremely well-liked by all OC's. In fact, practically everyone mentioned Ralph on the cruise to Nassau. However, the training center will lose the talents of this fine gentleman when he reports to the USCGC Active in February.

LTJG ROGER T. OSTROM

One of the most sincere officers we have known; he helped many an OC find his way through CIC. He found this easy for after all he invented the maneuvering board. He will be remembered as a kind man, a true gentleman, and outstanding officer, a competent instructor, and a warm cuddly panda.

LTJG VIRGIL J. O'GRADY

Affectionately known as the "Superdude", Mr. O'Grady led a neverending battle against truth, justice and the American language. Probably the wittiest instructor here, he succeeded in making the Rules of the Road sound like Winnie the Pooh. Though he gave out his share of demerits, he will be remembered as an authority on everything from navigation to conch shells and a real friend of the OC's.
