

LTJG JOHN G. HOGAN

Last of the great seamen, better known as Ensign Ben, he thrilled us with tales of his nights alone with his models: cars, planes and boats. He hopes to return to the sea someday, but while at Yorktown he pursued his many talents such as CIC, basketball, etc. Mr. Hogan never did find out who the real Hopley Yeaton was - the oldest Yorktown bicyclist.

CHGUN EUGENE O. THORSON

The big shot at RTC, Mr. Thorson drilled us on the intricacies of the five inch and other ordinary ordnance. He took his life in his hands when he showed us how to handle the .45 caliber pistol, but then, he took his life in his hands driving that red-hot Barracuda around the base. He knows his gunnery and taught us well, but what happens when the sear on the gyro spin nipple interconnects with the train angle input shaft on the Mark 86 Mod 1 gizmo? Oh well, what the hell!
