

WILLIAM R. STROMSEM Sportsman, traveler, bon vivant, connoisseur of fine wines and choice viands, the Commander brought to Yorktown a taste of Chevy Chase "haute couture." Bill was a fine fellow and good friend, a rare commodity at OCS.

ALAN THORNDIKE

To cruise beneath the starry skies
Upon an azure sea,
I dreamt of a carefree sailor's life,
Bound for Rio and Waikiki.

Then FIGMO came and squashed my dreams,
My hope turned into woe.
I'm bound for nearby Norfolk
On Ocean Station Echo.

FRANK E. WILEY Nobody was ever quite sure what niche in life belonged to Frank Wiley. Human computer system? Bacchic reveler? or radio repairman? Alas, while attempting to master the helm of the Attack Teacher one day, his circuits overheated and Mr. Wiley self-destructed in a frenzy of twitching wires and popping tubes.

THOMAS A. YOUNG Tugboat Tom Young, often mistaken to be the brother of Mighty Joe, was nevertheless one of Alpha-Two's finest assets as an athlete and person. He always seemed to have visitors in his room, due perhaps to his popularity and more likely to the picture of Ina on the bookcase.

Able to leap mine fields at a single bound.
