

WILLARD R. ADAMS

Woody came to OCS from the deserts of Nevada. A former Coast Guard Academy student, he saw the light and abandoned New London for the fields of Yorktown. From here, he's off to the beaches of Pensacola and flight school.

JACK E. GECK

Always a proponent of sound military procedure, Jack once attended a formation without the platoon. He properly reported everyone absent with the exception of himself. This lone eagle is going to Pensacola for flight training.

MARC A. FIORINI

Marc spent enough hours in the pool to qualify as a diving officer. While certainly not an Olympic caliber swimmer, he did teach himself to walk along the bottom of the pool to the shallow end. Can he do the same in the Pacific Ocean from the cutter Morganthau?
