

DOUGLAS P. HURD

Doug liked nothing better than a long hot shower after morning calls. Unfortunately, as the last one out, he was often left without a towel. It's all part of the program, Doug. Now it's off to Ketchikan, Alaska, and the cutter Laurel.

EDWARD H. HOTARD

Alpha-one's financial wizard. For Ed, there was no longer any challenge to making money on the outside, so he came into the Guard, hoping to be the first O-1 millionaire. A gifted speaker, he once kept us mesmerized through a leadership class by arguing both sides of an issue for twenty minutes. We don't know which side won, though, because by the time he was done, we'd forgotten the question. Naturally, he's going to headquarters.

WILLIAM L. CAREY

Boston Bill was Alpha-one's token sophisticate. As the first PPO with a smoking jacket, he instituted the forum of "suaves out." Recognizing his talent, the Coast Guard snatched him up for a headquarters billet.
