

Despite their relaxed pose, GLACIER Divers were prepared to meet any challenge underwater. They were called on to assist the Mater Vessel Polar Duke unfold a line caught in her screw. Truly one of the most hazardous jobs in the Coast Guard. GLACIER Divers met the task well.

GLACIER'S DIVERS, BM2 Jankowski, LT. Melott Dive Officer, DC1 Harris, MST3 Nasse

DC1 Harris takes a break

Detached at Palmer Station the Arctic Survey Boat served as a Scientific platform to carry out many experiments in and around Palmer Station. The Crew prepared weeks in advance for their deployment insuring that the ASH was in top shape for her mission. The Crew was complimented by the National Science Foundation for their outstanding performance.

ASH CREW RT1 Manning, MK1 Crippen, BMC Mufford, BM1 Hupf