

At Newport they cruised the nearby waters on training ships and received instruction in gunnery, seamanship, swimming, damage control and other subjects to prepare them for their command. They became a close-knit organization.

