

In her structure are living facilities for over 5,000 souls. Enough wiring is strung in her hull to reach from New York to Providence, R. I., and her electric generators could easily produce enough current to light a small town.

