

Normally, the routine of carrying troops begins on a cold, drafty dock at night. Red Cross women dispense cheer in form of hot coffee and doughnuts to the waiting troops. Somewhere in the darkness an Army band strikes up "Sweet Sue" or perhaps "Anchors Aweigh".

