

Of the tens of thousands of soldiers who have marched up the GORDON's gangway, 90 per cent of them say the same words as they step down into the ship, "Well—this is it!" Some of them whisper this to themselves. Some of them laugh, look around to their buddies behind them and shout it. But they all say it—or think it.

