

The MENDOTA's Gunfire was often directed by a spotter who flew over the targets in a plane like the one above. He was our eye in sky. The spotter corrected our fall of shot and gave us a report on the damage caused by our shells. The impressive list of gun damage assessment returned to us by our spotters attests to the accuracy of our gun crew.

