

The Initiation Of Golden Dragons

A call came from out of nowhere: Hove too, prepare to be boarded by Davey Jones, King Neptune and his Royal court. The sounds of pirates could be heard roasting all polywogs. The King and Court ordered the wogs to the focsle to await their trial by the court of the Seven Seas. As the honored tradition of the crossing of the Equator, all polywogs must be initiated to insure safe passage by his Royal King Neptune. The day of the initiation all willing polywogs (and some not so willing) were taken before the Judge found guilty of their crimes, and given to the King for punishment. After all was over and cleaned up, the crew gathered for a picnic and laughed over the day's fun.
