

The Quartermasters

The navigation division had an important and time consuming task that will benefit future expeditions to Antarctica. Working in conjunction with the MSTs, the QMs corrected old chart data in the Pine Island Bay region and added new information. While others were involved with flight operations, they were busy making track lines and taking Polar Sea where no one has gone before.

Right: OK, theoretically, if you follow this course here, you shouldn't run into these rocks.
Below: This is better than a Pink Floyd laser light show.

QM3 Amanda Randall, QM2 Mike McGahran, QM2 Peg Murphy, QMCM William Nitche, LTJG Techamp (Navigation Officer), QM2 Al Barrera, QM3 Gil Cozneras, QM2 Shawn Maddock, QM3 Steve Petz.

Now what have I told you about using lead based paint on those gimballs?
