

Wardroom Bids Ado to "Old Salts"

The Alpat was the last for a number of officers, some who could be considered old veterans at the game. LT Hull held the dubious distinction of being the officer who had made the most, but CWO Duncan and LT. Cascardi came in a close second. Though others had not made as many patrols it was to be the last for nearly half the wardroom.

During the FleetEx things were quiet in the wardroom because most people were standing port and starboard watches, but by the second half of patrol spades, cribbage, popcorn, and movies found their familiar way back into the evening routine. LTJG Danny Conty, who left RUSH in Adak, was sorely missed.

Towards the end of patrol the Wardroom hosted a buffet for the Chiefs and First Class, a pleasant evening for all.
