

Victoria Day Festival - A Sunny Canadian Holiday

On the way home RUSH stopped at the Esquimalt Naval base in time for the Victoria Day Festival. Victoria, the capital of British Columbia, Canada, was filled with tourists from all over Canada and the United States to join in the festivities, and the weather could not have been better. The sun shone every day making shopping in the quaint Victoria stores and touring the beautiful Vancouver Island even more delightful.

Some people left to visit Seattle or Vancouver city, but most were content to see the Parades, Butchart gardens, or Empress Hotel.
