

Our duties kept us at sea most of the time, but we did get a few chances to view South Vietnam first hand in the Delta city of Vung Tau and the village of Song Ong Doc. The first things we noticed in Vung Tau was that the motorcycle was the main means of motorized transportation and donkey cart was the main means of other vehicular transportation. Most of the people, however, walked to and from their destinations.

