

The ship's gun crew make ready their guns for immediate action, if necessary

As the transport zig-zagged across the Atlantic, her guns were made ready for action. At a second's warning it might become necessary to use them. Germany was sinking ships from American shores to that of Europe.