

After 45 days in the ice with no ports of call you can imagine how we all felt about coming back to Reykjavik. The scientists were especially elated since we had just come in out of a storm and they were flying back to the USA.

The whiskey was very expensive but that didn't stop us from having some excellent times. Where in Iceland could true Milwaukeeans find a cold draft beer? ... At the US Naval Base in Keflavik, where we had a wild time on the eve of departure for home. We knew Iceland would remember us always.

Exploring the fishing village of Gulfoss.

Contemporary Iceland.

